in this timely book new zealand s best known commentator on population trends distinguished professor paul spoonley shows how as new zealand moves into the 2020s the demographic dividends of the last 70 years are turning into deficits our population patterns have been disrupted more boomers fewer children an ever bigger auckland and declining regions are the new normal we will need new economic models new ways of living spoonley says it is not a crisis even if at times it feels like it but rather something that needs to be understood and responded to but i fear that policy makers and politicians are not up to the challenge that would be a crisis

new zealand s recovery has stalled since mid 2010 spare capacity has helped contain inflation the reserve bank of new zealand rbnz lifted its policy rate in two steps from a record low of 2.5 percent to 3 percent in mid 2010 the exchange rate appreciated and financial markets have largely recovered from the global financial crisis the banking sector remains profitable and is dominated by four subsidiaries of australian banks that performed well during the crisis the 2010 canterbury earthquakes have disrupted economic activity reduced wealth and weakened confidence as a group of islands in the far south west pacific ocean new zealand has a history that is steeped in the sea its people have encountered the sea in many different ways along the coast in port on ships beneath the waves behind a camera and in the realm of the imagination while new zealanders have continually altered their marine environments the ocean too has influenced their lives a multi disciplinary work encompassing history marine science archaeology and visual culture new zealand and the sea explores new zealand s varied relationship with the sea challenging the conventional view that history unfolds on land leading and emerging scholars highlight the dynamic ocean centred history of these islands and their inhabitants offering fascinating new perspectives on new zealand s pasts the ocean has profoundly shaped culture across this narrow archipelago the meeting of land and sea is central in historical accounts of polynesian discovery and colonisation european exploratory voyaging sealing whaling and the littoral communities that supported these plural occupations and the mass migrant passage from britain frances steel beyond the imperial frontier is an exploration of the different ways māori and pākehā fronted one another the zones of contact and encounter across the nineteenth century beginning with a pre 1840 era marked by significant cooperation vincent o malley details the emergence of a more competitive and conflicted post treaty world as a collected work these essays also chart the development of a leading new zealand historian by any measure new zealand must confront monumental issues in the years ahead from the future of work to climate change wealth inequality to new populism these challenges are complex and even unprecedented yet why does new zealand s political discussion seem so diminished and our political imagination unequal to the enormity of these issues and why is this gulf particularly apparent to young new zealanders these questions sit at the centre of max harris s new zealand project this book represents from the perspective of a brilliant young new zealander a vision for confronting the challenges ahead unashamedly idealistic the new zealand project arrives at a time of global upheaval that demands new conversations about our shared future unlike in europe north america australia and elsewhere urban history has never been sustained as a distinct field of scholarship in new zealand this is surprising considering that since the early twentieth century most new zealanders have lived in towns and cities 86 per cent were urban in 2014 yet we know surprisingly little about these urban dwellers and the spaces in which they lived the pursuit of city life is one of the most important untold stories of new zealand the big smoke is the first comprehensive history to tell this story presenting a dynamic and highly illustrated account of city life from 1840 to 1920 it explores such questions as what did cities look like and how did they change why were women especially drawn to live in cities in what ways did māori experience and shape cities how far was the street a living room and stage for city life and why did new zealand so quickly become a nation of townspeople at a time of national debate over housing and the growth of our cities ben schrader s superb new history reveals how our urban origins have shaped the people we are today available in paperback and ebook formats from booksellers and using the buy buttons on this page for more information on these purchase options please visit our sales faqs page or contact us this book examines how indigenous peoples around the world are demanding greater data sovereignty and challenging the ways in which governments have historically used indigenous data to develop policies and programs in the digital age governments are increasingly dependent on data and data analytics to inform their policies and decision making however indigenous peoples have often been the unwilling targets of policy interventions and have had little say over the collection use and application of data about them their lands and cultures at the heart of indigenous peoples demands for change are the enduring aspirations of self determination over their institutions resources knowledge and information systems with contributors from australia aotearoa new zealand north and south america and europe this book offers a rich account of the potential for indigenous data sovereignty to support human flourishing and to protect against the ever growing threats of data related risks and harms the open access version of this book available at taylorfrancis com books e 9780429273957 has been made available under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives 4 0 license this landmark publication provides a comprehensive and authoritative account of new zealand s involvement in the vietnam war and will remain the standard reference work on the subject for decades its publication completes the programme of official war histories that began in 1945 ian mcgibbon s primary focus is what new zealand did in south vietnam he traces in detail the operations carried out by new zealand forces and seeks to illuminate the experience of new zealand soldiers fighting in a guerrilla war the command structure logistic support and operational context of fighting within a primarily australian framework are all covered he addresses controversial aspects such as friendly fire incidents atrocity allegations and veterans grievances including over agent orange maori participation in v force was substantial and its impact is assessed although the book is inevitably weighted towards the military the efforts of civilians in south vietnam are also covered in depth the surgical team operated from 1963 until their evacuation from qui nhon just days before north vietnamese columns entered the city not forgotten are the efforts of courageous civilians like sister mary laurence and of red cross volunteers to alleviate misery among refugees the book also describes the dramatic end of new zealand s involvement in south vietnam with the surgical team and the new zealand embassy evacuated by rnzaf bristol freighters just before the communist victory finally mcgibbon surveys the war s troubled aftermath culminating in the prime minister s apology to veterans in 2008 the new zealand wars were a series of conflicts that profoundly shaped the course and direction of our nation s history fought between the crown and various groups of māori between 1845 and 1872 the wars touched many aspects of life in nineteenth century new zealand even in those regions spared actual fighting physical remnants or reminders from these conflicts and their aftermath can be found all over the country whether in central auckland wellington dunedin or in more rural locations such as te pōrere or te awamutu the wars are an integral part of the new zealand story but we have not always cared to remember or acknowledge them today however interest in the wars is resurgent public figures are calling for the wars to be taught in all schools and a national day of commemoration was recently established following on from the best selling the great war for new zealand vincent o malley s new book provides a highly accessible introduction to the causes events and consequences of the new zealand wars the text is supported by extensive full colour illustrations as well as timelines graphs and summary tables
