featuring brilliant urban photography this celebration of the dynamic presence of sculpture in wellington vividly captures more than 40 sculptures throughout the city's streets and parks an informative and provocative examination of the sculptures origins this collection shows how many of the gorgeous art works came into being due to the shared vision of individuals government agencies and corporations who value the relationship of art and city to brighten the lives of its citizens the result is both a visual feast and a unique record of the 21st century city's fabric sure to be treasured by travelers art enthusiasts and locals alike the new zealand wars were a series of conflicts that profoundly shaped the course and direction of our nation's history fought between the crown and various groups of māori between 1845 and 1872 the wars touched many aspects of life in nineteenth century new zealand even in those regions spared actual fighting physical remnants or reminders from these conflicts and their aftermath can be found all over the country whether in central auckland wellington dunedin or in more rural locations such as te pūrere or te awamutu the wars are an integral part of the new zealand story but we have not always cared to remember or acknowledge them today however interest in the wars is resurgent public figures are calling for the wars to be taught in all schools and a national day of commemoration was recently established following on from the best selling the great war for new zealand vincent o malley's new book provides a highly accessible introduction to the causes events and consequences of the new zealand wars the text is supported by extensive full colour illustrations as well as timelines graphs and summary tables in 1946 a group of students and idealists got together to realize their visions for a modern city over the following half century the architectural centre they founded helped shape the possibilities of modern life in urban new zealand and profoundly influenced the remaking of the capital city of wellington more than just an association of architects the centre furthered education published a magazine design review hosted modernist exhibitions in its gallery staged an audacious campaign for political influence called the project and fought for better planning better design and better built environments in wellington charting these activists and their projects over the years julia gatley and paul walker also offer a history of urban wellington from the 1940s to the 1990s and beyond the book reminds us that in modernist ideology architecture and urban planning went hand in hand with visual and craft arts graphic and industrial design in recovering the multidisciplinary history politics and planning of the architectural centre gatley and walker begin writing the city back into the history of architecture in new zealand

pākehā settlements in a māori world offers a vivid account of early european experience in these islands through material evidence offered by the archaeological record as european exploration in the 1770s gave way to sealing whaling and timber felling pākehā visitors first became sojourners in small remote camps then settlers scattered around the coast over time mission stations were established alongside farms businesses and industries and eventually towns and government centres through these decades a small but growing pākehā population lived within and alongside a māori world often interacting closely this phase drew to a close in the 1850s as the numbers of pākehā began to exceed the māori population and the wars of the 1860s brought brutal transformation to the emerging society and its economy archaeologist ian smith tells the story of adaptation change and continuity as two vastly different cultures learned to inhabit the same country from the scant physical signs of first contact to the wealth of detail about daily life in established settlements archaeological evidence amplifies the historical narrative glimpses of a world in the midst of turbulent change abound in this richly illustrated book as the visual narrative makes clear archaeology brings history into the present making the past visible in the landscape around us and enabling an understanding of complex histories in the places we inhabit
