as a group of islands in the far south west pacific ocean new zealand has a history that is steeped in the sea its people have encountered the sea in many different ways along the coast in port on ships beneath the waves behind a camera and in the realm of the imagination while new zealanders have continually altered their marine environments the ocean too has influenced their lives a multi disciplinary work encompassing history marine science archaeology and visual culture new zealand and the sea explores new zealand s varied relationship with the sea challenging the conventional view that history unfolds on land leading and emerging scholars highlight the dynamic ocean centred history of these islands and their inhabitants offering fascinating new perspectives on new zealand s pasts the ocean has profoundly shaped culture across this narrow archipelago the meeting of land and sea is central in historical accounts of polynesian discovery and colonisation european exploratory voyaging sealing whaling and the littoral communities that supported these plural occupations and the mass migrant passage from britain frances steel what would a history of new zealand look like that rejected thomas carlyle s definition of history as the biography of great men and focused instead on the experiences of women one that shifted the angle of vision and examined the stages of this country s development from the points of view of wives daughters mothers grandmothers sisters and aunts that considered their lives as distinct from though often unwillingly influenced by those of history s great men in her ground breaking history of new zealand women barbara brookes provides just such a history this is more than an account of women in new zealand from those who arrived on the first waka to the grammy and man booker prize winning young women of the current decade it is a comprehensive history of new zealand seen through a female lens brookes argues that while european men erected the political scaffolding to create a small nation women created the infrastructure necessary for colonial society to succeed concepts of home marriage and family brought by settler women and integral to the developing state transformed the lives of māori women the small scale of new zealand society facilitated rapid change so that by the twenty first century women are no longer defined by family contexts in her long awaited book barbara brookes traces the factors that drove that change her lively narrative draws on a wide variety of sources to map the importance in women s lives not just of legal and economic changes but of smaller joys such as the arrival of a piano from england or the freedom of riding a bicycle winner of the booker prize for fiction 2013 it is 1866 and walter moody has come to make his fortune upon the new zealand goldfields on arrival he stumbles across a tense gathering of twelve local men who have met in secret to discuss a series of unsolved crimes a wealthy man has vanished a whore has tried to end her life and an enormous fortune has been discovered in the home of a luckless drunk moody is soon drawn into the mystery a network of fates and fortunes that is as complex and exquisitely patterned as the night sky the luminaries is an extraordinary piece of fiction it is full of narrative linguistic and psychological pleasures and has a fiendishly clever and original structuring device written in pitch perfect historical register richly evoking a mid 19th century world of shipping and banking and goldrush boom and bust it is also a ghost story and a gripping mystery it is a thrilling achievement and will confirm for critics and readers that catton is one of the brightest stars in the international writing firmament this book examines how indigenous peoples around the world are demanding greater data sovereignty and challenging the ways in which governments have historically used indigenous data to develop policies and programs in the digital age governments are increasingly dependent on data and data analytics to inform their policies and decision making however indigenous peoples have often been the unwilling targets of policy interventions and have had little say over the collection use and application of data about them their lands and cultures at the heart of indigenous peoples demands for change are the enduring aspirations of self determination over their institutions resources knowledge and information systems with contributors from australia aotearoa new zealand north and south america and europe this book offers a rich account of the potential for indigenous data sovereignty to support human flourishing and to protect against the ever growing threats of data related risks and harms the open access version of this book available at taylorfrancis com books e 9780429273957 has been made available under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives 4 0 license this book traces the enduring relationship between history people and place that has shaped the character of a single region in a manner perhaps unique within the new zealand experience it explores the evolution of a distinctive regional literature that both shaped and was shaped by the physical and historical environment that inspired it looking westwards towards australia and long shut off within new zealand by the south island s rugged southern alps the west coast was a land of gold coal and timber in the 1950s and 1960s it nurtured a literature that embodied a sense of belonging to an australasian world and captured the aspirations of new zealand s emergent radical nationalism more recent west coast writers observing the hollowing out of their communities saw in miniature and in advance the growing gulf between city and regional economies aligned to an older economic order losing its relevance were they chronicling the last hurrah of a retreating age or crafting a literature of regional resistance by any measure new zealand must confront monumental issues in the years ahead from the future of work to climate change wealth inequality to new populism these challenges are complex and even unprecedented yet why does new zealand s political discussion seem so diminished and our political imagination unequal to the enormity of these issues and why is this gulf particularly apparent to young new zealanders these questions sit at the centre of max harris s new zealand project this book represents from the perspective of a brilliant young new zealander a vision for confronting the challenges ahead unashamedly idealistic the new zealand project arrives at a time of global upheaval that demands new conversations about our shared future
