as a group of islands in the far south west pacific ocean new zealand has a history that is steeped in the sea its people have encountered the sea in many different ways along the coast in port on ships beneath the waves behind a camera and in the realm of the imagination while new Zealanders have continually altered their marine environments the ocean too has influenced their lives a multi disciplinary work encompassing history marine science archaeology and visual culture new Zealand and the sea explores new Zealand's varied relationship with the sea challenging the conventional view that history unfolds on land leading and emerging scholars highlight the dynamic ocean centred history of these islands and their inhabitants offering fascinating new perspectives on new Zealand's pasts the ocean has profoundly shaped culture across this narrow archipelago the meeting of land and sea is central in historical accounts of Polynesian discovery and colonisation European exploratory voyaging sealing whaling and the littoral communities that supported these plural occupations and the mass migrant passage from Britain France's steel

by any measure new Zealand must confront monumental issues in the years ahead from the future of work to climate change wealth inequality to new populism these challenges are complex and even unprecedented yet why does new Zealand's political discussion seem so diminished and our political imagination unequal to the enormity of these issues and why is this gulf particularly apparent to young new Zealanders these questions sit at the centre of Max Harris's new Zealand project this book represents from the perspective of a brilliant young new Zealander a vision for confronting the challenges ahead unashamedly idealistic the new Zealand project arrives at a time of global upheaval that demands new conversations about our shared future
